I, the undersigned,

GERHARD PAPENFUS

do hereby make oath and state:

1. I am the CEO of the first applicant.

2. I depose to this founding affidavit on behalf of the applicants. The facts herein are within my own knowledge or derive from documents under my control and are true and correct. I attended the hearing of the application in the High Court.

3. Legal submissions are based on the advice of the applicants' legal representatives.

PROCEDURAL BACKGROUND TO THIS APPLICATION

4. This is the second time this application for leave to appeal serves before this Court.

5. On 17 September 2025, the applicants applied for leave to appeal directly to the Court.

6. On 10 March 2026, this Court handed down the following order:

> "1. Leave to file a replying affidavit is granted.
> 2. Leave to appeal directly to this Court is refused."

7. A copy of the Court's order is attached as "FA1".

8. On 19 March 2026, the Supreme Court of Appeal (per Molefe JA and Kganyago AJA) dismissed the application for leave to appeal to that court. The application was dismissed with costs, despite the rule in Biowatch.

9. A copy of the SCA's order is attached as "FA2". I point out that the original date of the order was 11 March 2026, but it was officially stamped and handed down on 19 March 2026.

10. Having exhausted their remedies in the courts below, the applicants now again apply urgently for leave to appeal to this Court.

11. The applicants persist with their attempt to appeal urgently against the High Court's refusal of interdictory relief, pending the review, because of the clear unlawfulness of the impugned administrative action concerned and the vast number of people including black, coloured, Indian and white women that will suffer irreparable harm by being refused employment or promotion if interim relief is not granted and the impugned administrative action is implemented. As set out in the affidavit below, vast numbers of businesses and individual men will also suffer irreparable harm. The constitutional rights that are being, and will be, irreparably infringed include the rights in sections 9, 10, 22 and 33 of the Constitution.

12. It is in the interests of justice that this Court intervenes now, pending proceedings in due course in the High Court.

13. The state respondents continue to delay the hearing of the review. Despite the launch of the review on 8 July 2025, the respondents have still not filed the Rule 53 record, which was due on 29 July 2025.

14. The respondents remained unmoved when the applicants repeatedly demanded the delivery of the record and delivered a Rule 30A notice during 2025. The respondents then continued to remain unmoved when the applicants applied on 20 November 2025 for an order compelling the delivery of the record. The order in the application to compel was granted on 9 March 2026. Despite receiving notice of the order through CaseLines, the respondents still did not deliver the record. The applicants' attorneys accordingly caused the service of the signed order on the respondents on 25 March 2026. The respondents have yet to react.

15. The combined review and constitutional challenge to which this application relates will be a very large application. Its scope extends beyond the targets and the regulations that are the immediate subject of this application and in respect of which interdictory relief is sought. It includes a review and a constitutional challenge to the underlying legislation. By contrast, the subject of this application is narrow and confined in scope.

16. In the combined review and constitutional challenge, the record, the issues that will be covered, and the papers that will be filed, will be voluminous. Given its size alone, it is very unlikely that the main application will to be ripe for hearing in 2026, after which the parties will wait another 4 to 6 months for a hearing. Given what unfortunately appears to be a deliberate strategy on the part of the respondents to delay the combined review and constitutional challenge, that application will almost certainly not be heard until deep in 2027 at the earliest.

17. Meanwhile, clearly unlawful administrative action will be implemented and the irreparable harm identified in this application will be suffered unless this Court intervenes.

18. While the applicants apply urgently to this Court, they remain mindful of the status of the Court. They will therefore respectfully await this Court's directions on how the application should proceed, if the Court is minded to set the matter down for hearing. The Court is respectfully informed that it will be possible for the record to be prepared within 10 working days, and for the applicants' heads of argument to be prepared within 10 working days of the delivery of the record.

PARTIES

19. The first applicant is the NATIONAL EMPLOYERS' ASSOCIATION OF SOUTH AFRICA ("NEASA"), an employers' association duly registered in terms of the Labour Relations Act 66 of 1995, with its head office at 160 Breed Street, Montana, Pretoria.

20. NEASA's members comprise some 7000 employers in South Africa.

21. The second applicant is SAKELIGA NPC ("Sakeliga"), a duly registered non-profit company with registration number 2012/043725/08 and with principal place of business at Block A, Floor 5, Loftus Park, 416 Kirkness Street, Arcadia, Pretoria.

22. Sakeliga is a non-profit company representing more than 15 000 subscribed businesses and over 50 000 subscribed individuals. Sakeliga's objectives include the promotion and protection of constitutional rights, the rule of law, and a just and sustainable business environment within South Africa, in the interests of its members and of the broader public.

23. NEASA and Sakeliga launched proceedings in the High Court in the interests of their members, in the interests of employers and employees who will be affected by the targets and regulations referred to in this application, and in the public interest.

24. The first respondent is the MINISTER OF EMPLOYMENT AND LABOUR ("the Minister"):

24.1 who is the member of the national executive responsible for the administration, implementation and enforcement of the Employment Equity Act 55 of 1998 ("the Act");

24.2 who is responsible for the Department of Employment and Labour ("the Department"); and 24.3 whose office is situated at Laboria House, 215 Francis Baard Street, Pretoria.

25. The second respondent is the DIRECTOR-GENERAL OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EMPLOYMENT AND LABOUR whose office is situated at Laboria House, 215 Francis Baard Street, Pretoria.

26. The third respondent is the COMMISSION FOR EMPLOYMENT EQUITY ("the Commission"), an organ of state established in terms of section 28 of the Act, whose office is situated at Laboria House, 215 Francis Baard Street, Pretoria.

PURPOSE OF THE APPLICATION

27. This is an application in terms of Rule 19(2) for leave to appeal against the judgment and order of the Gauteng Division, Pretoria in case 107022/2025 delivered on 28 August 2025. A copy of the judgment is attached as "FA3".

28. In that application, the High Court dismissed the applicants' urgent application for temporary orders interdicting and suspending[1] the operation and implementation of the sectoral numerical targets set by the Minister in terms of section 15A(2) of the Act, together with certain of the administrative regulations that were published to facilitate their implementation.

29. The targets were set in Government Notice No. 6124 in Government Gazette No. 52514 on 15 April 2025 ("the targets" or "the 2025 targets"). An extract of the notice containing the targets is attached as "FA4".

30. The impugned regulations include regulations 9(1), 9(2), and 9(8) to 9(12) of the General Administrative Regulations published in Government Notice No. 6125 in Government Gazette No. 5215 on 15 April 2025 ("the impugned

1 The Notice of Motion read "interdicting and/or suspending". The order sought on appeal in this Court simply reads "are interdicted". The substance of the order sought before the High Court and in the envisaged appeal to this Court is a temporary interdict restraining the operation and implementation of administrative action that the applicants claim to be unlawful, pending the review.

regulations").[2] An extract of the notice containing the impugned regulations is attached as "FA5".

31. The applicants launched the application to the High Court on an urgent basis on 8 July 2025 because the targets to be implemented from 1 September 2025 are clearly unconstitutional, unlawful and invalid, and their implementation will cause irreparable harm to the constitutional rights of thousands of employers and employees.

32. The targets will accordingly impact every designated employer in South Africa and potentially impact every individual who is employed by a designated employer or will apply to be employed by a designated employer.

33. In 2024, there were 15 687 such designated employers in South Africa registered with the Department, who employed an aggregate of 7 357 011 employees.

34. Accordingly, and by legislative design, the impact of the implementation of the targets will be both comprehensive and vast. Because the targets are unconstitutional and invalid, the number of businesses and individuals that will be adversely affected, and the scale of irreparable harm that will be suffered, will equally be vast.

2 The applicants did not apply to interdict the operation and implementation of section 20(2A) of the Act pending the review, which provides that the employment equity plans of employers must comply with the targets set by the Minister in terms of section 15A. Accordingly, the applicants do not persist in applying for the interim relief, interdicting the operation and implementation of Regulations 9(5)(b), 9(7), 9(13) and 9(14).

35. It is important to emphasise that the application for interim relief is only to interdict the implementation of targets that are clearly unconstitutional, unlawful and invalid and to prevent the irreparable harm that will be caused if those targets are implemented pending Part B of the combined review and constitutional challenge.

36. The application for interim relief challenges the lawfulness of the specific targets set and does not seek to interdict other provisions of Chapter 3 of the Act. The Minister and the Department are free to withdraw the current, unlawful and invalid targets and to set new targets that comply with the Constitution and section 15A of the Act. Sections 15A, 20(2A), 42(1)(aA), 53(6)(a) and 53(6)(b) of the Act, which introduce the scheme of compulsory numerical targets, are only impugned in Part B. These sections will continue to apply unless and until they are found unconstitutional and such unconstitutionality is confirmed by this Court.

37. In addition, neither the application for interim relief nor the review affects the pre-existing obligations on employers in Chapter 3 of the Act, nor the robust enforcement provisions or the powers of the Minister and the Department provided by the Act to ensure compliance with these. These pre-existing obligations include the setting of employment equity goals by individual employers in cases where the Act requires affirmative action measures for designated groups.[3]

38. The applicants now urgently appeal to this Court for the same reason.

OVERVIEW OF THE APPLICATION

39. Concisely stated, the targets and impugned regulations are unconstitutional, unlawful and invalid, for the following reasons:

39.1 Firstly, the targets and impugned regulations unfairly discriminate against women:

39.1.1 According to the targets and impugned regulations, women are not permitted to be in the majority in any occupation level of any business that has 50 or more employees in South Africa, or in any part of public administration.[4] In all sectors and occupation levels, the percentage of employees who are women is limited to a maximum of 46.1%.[5]

39.1.2 In sectors and occupational levels where women are numerically dominant, the targets require the percentage of women to be reduced to the maximum of 46.1%, and the percentage of men to be increased, with the result that men will be the majority.[6] These reductions will seriously disadvantage women of all races, who are recognised by law as a previously disadvantaged group.

4 Except the National Defence Force, the National Intelligence Agency, and the South African Secret Service: See section 1 of the Act, definition of "designated employer"

5 The range in the targets for women is between 20.8% and 46.1%.

39.2 Secondly, the targets were set by the Minister without first publishing the targets in draft form for comment, as required by section 15A(4) of the Act.

39.3 Thirdly, the targets were set without the Minister properly consulting with the sectors for whom they were set, as required by section 15A(2) of the Act.

39.4 Fourthly, the targets are arbitrary in that they were set according to a method that fails to take into account the particular circumstances of the sectors for which they were set. The same method precluded the Minister from taking into account relevant considerations.

39.5 Fifthly, the targets are unlawful and invalid because the Minister failed to obtain and consider a comprehensive socio-economic impact assessment on the impact of the targets and the impugned regulations prior to publishing them, in circumstances where this was necessary for the exercise of power to be rational.

6 In one instance, women currently represent 77.2% of persons employed in an occupation level in the sector – the targets require employers to reduce that number to 46.1% in 5 years.

40. The constitutional rights that are implicated, and will be irreparably harmed if the High Court judgment is not overturned and the interim relief is granted, are the right to equality, dignity, freedom of trade, occupation and profession and administrative justice contained in sections 9, 10, 22 and 33 of the Constitution.

41. The irreparable harm that the targets will cause to the constitutional rights of employers, employees and prospective employees (and women in particular) began on 1 September 2025, and will occur on an ongoing basis for the next five years, unless interim relief is granted.

42. The interim relief sought will preserve the position as it was prior to 1 September 2025.

43. Employers will continue with their pre-existing employment equity plans or adopt and implement new plans, which include numerical targets and strategies to implement those targets when required in terms of section 20(2)(c) of the Act. The targets will be set taking into account the particular facts and circumstances of the business, the availability of suitably qualified persons, the economic status and growth in the sector, the rate of attrition of employees etc. All of the robust enforcement provisions contained in the Act will continue to apply.

44. The only difference will be that employers will not be obliged to adopt and implement unlawful and invalid targets in their employment equity plans.

45. The interim relief sought will also not prevent the Minister from withdrawing the unlawful and invalid targets, and setting new targets, that are consistent with the Constitution, in a manner that complies with section 15A of the Act.

46. In this regard, in Part A no interim relief is sought interdicting or restraining the operation of sections 15A, 20(2A), 41(1)(aA) and 56(3)(a) and 56(3)(b) of the Act pending the review. The applicants challenge the constitutionality of these sections in Part B of the application. But these sections will continue to operate unless and until the High Court determines they are unconstitutional and such decision is confirmed by this Court.[7]

EXCEPTIONAL CIRCUMSTANCES

47. The circumstances of this application are exceptional.

48. The targets and impugned regulations require substantial changes to the workforce in the four upper occupation levels of every sector of the economy and public administration over the next 5 years.[8]

7 There is also a judgment pending in a separate challenge to the same provisions of the Act in Democratic Alliance v Minister of Employment and Labour and Others Gauteng Division, Pretoria, Case No. 5759/2023.

8 Top management, senior management, professionally qualified and middle management, and skilled or technical employees. In addition, Regulation 9(12) requires employers to set annual targets with a view to conforming the two lowest occupation levels (semi-skilled and unskilled employees) to the demographic of the economically active population in South Africa.

49. The targets will impact every designated employer in South Africa, and potentially impact every individual who is employed by a designated employer, or will apply to be employed by a designated employer.

50. A designated employer includes any employer who employs 50 or more employees, every municipality, and every organ of state as defined in section 139 of the Constitution, excluding the National Defence Force, the National Intelligence Agency, and the South Africa Secret Service.[9]

51. In 2024, there were 15 687 such designated employers in South Africa, who employed an aggregate of 7 357 011 employees.[10]

52. In terms of section 20(2A) of the Act, the 5-year targets must be adopted in the employment equity plans of every designated employer. Every designated employer must set annual numerical goals and implement strategies to reach such goals in years 1 to 4, in order to achieve the targets set by the Minister by the end of year 5.[11] In terms of Regulation 9(13), compliance by employers with the targets will depend on the extent to which they meet the annual goals set towards the targets.

53. Accordingly, and by legislative design, the impact of the implementation of the targets will be both comprehensive and vast.

9 See section 1 of the Act, definition of "designated employer"

10 There were 13 582 employers with less than 50 employees. These employers employed a total of 342 654 employees amongst them.

11 See section 20(1), (2), (2A) of the Act, and Regulations 7(a) and 9(13). Regulation 9(13) provides that compliance with the targets will be assessed against compliance with the annual targets set by an employer towards the 5-year target set by the Minister.

54. Because the targets are unconstitutional and invalid, the number of businesses and individuals that will be adversely affected, and the scale of irreparable harm that will be suffered, will equally be vast.

THE TARGETS UNCONSTITUTIONALLY DISADVANTAGE WOMEN

The reduction of women in the workforce

55. The adverse impact of the targets in general, and how they unlawfully discriminate against women in particular, can be illustrated using the targets of two sectors.

56. The first set of targets are the 2025 targets for the Health and Human Sciences Sector.

57. Below is a table presented by the Department to employers in this sector in a virtual meeting held on 17 February 2025, prior to the setting of the 2025 targets.

9. HUMAN HEALTH AND SOCIAL WORK ACTIVITIES - 5-YEAR SECTORAL NUMERICAL TARGETS

58. In the top row (in mustard), against the description "PROPOSED TARGET", are the targets that were subsequently set by the Minister.

59. In the second row from the bottom (in purple), is the demographic profile of the employees of all designated employers in the Health and Human Sciences Sector as at October 2024. The demographic profile of designated employers in October 2024 will hereafter be referred to as ("the 2024 workforce profile").

60. The Court will note, from a comparison of the proposed target with the 2024 workforce profile, that in the Health and Human Sciences Sector:

60.1 The 2024 workforce profile for senior management comprised 59.2% females and 24.8% males. The 2025 target is aimed at reducing females in senior management to 46.1% (-13.1%[12]) and increasing males to 39.8% (+15%).

60.2 The 2024 workforce profile for professionally qualified and middle management comprised 71.1% females and 23.4% males. The 2025 targets aim at reducing females employed at this level to 46.1%(-25%) and increasing males to 49.8% (+26.4%). The 2025 targets will have the effect of reducing women to a minority in this occupational level, and placing men in the majority, in 5 years.

60.3 The 2024 workforce profile for skilled or technical employees comprised 77.2% females and 20.6% males. The 2025 targets aim at reducing females employed at this level to 46.1% (-31.1%) and increasing males to 49.8% (+29.2%). The 2025 targets will have the effect of reducing women to a minority in this occupational level, and placing men in the majority, in 5 years.

61. The second set of targets are the 2025 targets for the Education Sector.

62. Below is the table presented by the Department to employers in this sector on 12 February 2025.

12 "%" designates "percentage points". As explained in this affidavit, the Minister has increased, decreased and set targets by making changes in percentage points. No consideration was given to the numbers of persons that the percentage points represent, or will affect.

	Total	67.4%	74.1%	85.8%	95.2%

63. The Court will note, from a comparison of the targets with the 2024 workforce profile, that in the Education Sector:

63.1 The 2024 workforce profile for top management comprised 44.8% females and 22.9% males. The 2025 targets cap the increase in the percentage of females at 46.1% (+1.3%) and increasing males to 27.6.% (+4.7%);

63.2 The 2024 workforce profile for senior management comprised 50.3% females and 23.5% males. The 2025 targets aim at reducing females employed at this level to 46.1% (-4.2%) and increasing males to 30.5% (+7%);

63.3 The 2024 workforce profile for professionally qualified and middle management comprised 58.3% females and for 28.0% males. The 2025 targets aim at reducing females employed at this level to 46.1% (-12.2%) and increasing males to 43% (+15%);

63.4 The 2024 workforce profile for skilled or technical employees comprised 70.7% females and 24.6% males. The 2025 targets aim at reducing females employed at this level to 46.1% (-24.6%) and increasing males to 49.8% (+25.2%). The 2025 targets will have the effect of reducing women to a minority in this occupational level, and of placing men in the majority, in 5 years.

64. The targets set by the Minister similarly reduce and cap the percentage of women in certain occupation levels in a further six sectors: Accommodation and Food Service Activities Sector, the Real Estate Sector, the Arts Entertainment and Recreation Sector, Financial and Insurance Activities Sector, Professional Scientific and Technical Activities Sector, and the Wholesale and Retail Trade Sector.

The irreparable harm that will be suffered by women and by employers

65. Stated in real and concrete terms, if the implementation and operation of the targets are not interdicted or suspended pending the review, the result will be that women will find it difficult or impossible to be promoted, or find employment, in the above occupation levels in all of the above sectors for the next five years.

66. Since these occupation levels include professionally qualified persons, and skilled or technical employees, women who are at university or completing their tertiary training, will find it difficult, if not impossible, to find employment. This is because women are, according to the targets and impugned regulations, "over-represented". The targets and impugned regulations will oblige employers to employ men over women.

67. Similarly, women who have commenced employment at lower occupation levels will practically not have any prospects of promotion, despite that they may otherwise have become eligible on account of long service. The targets and impugned regulations will oblige employers to promote men over women.

68. The harm suffered by the women who lose out on employment or promotion will be irreparable. Those who rely on women to support them will, in turn, be negatively impacted. The consequences will be most severe for households supported by single women. No remedy that may be granted by a Court in due course will remedy the above loss.

69. The seriousness of the harm that will be suffered by women, and the egregious nature of the violation of the rights of women, is highlighted by what this Court stated in Affordable Medicines[13] about the right to choose one's trade, occupation or profession:

> "What is at stake is more than one's right to earn a living, important though that is. Freedom to choose a vocation is intrinsic to the nature of a society based on human dignity as contemplated by the Constitution. One's work is part of one's identity and is constitutive of one's dignity. Every individual has a right to take up any activity which he or she believes himself or herself prepared to undertake as a profession and to make that activity the very basis of his or her life. And there is a relationship between work and the human personality as a whole. 'It is a relationship that shapes and completes the individual over a lifetime of devoted activity; it is the foundation of a person's existence'."

70. The above statement is true for all persons, whatever their gender, who will not be employed or passed over for promotion as a result of the implementation of unlawful and invalid targets.

71. The harm suffered by employers who will be obliged to make changes to their workforce in order to implement the above discriminatory targets will also be permanent and irreparable. After new employees are taken on, or certain employees are promoted over other employees, or employees are retrenched, there is no going back. No remedy that may be granted by a Court in due course will remedy their loss either.

A limit on the progress of women

72. The targets also unfairly discriminate against women in 12 sectors[14] by capping the maximum percentage of women at a maximum possible of 46.1%.

73. The figure of 46.1% is derived from the national economically active population statistics published by Statistics South Africa in the third quarter in 2024 ("the EAP").

74. The EAP includes all South African citizens and permanent residents between the ages of 15 and 64 years of age who are either employed, or are unemployed and are seeking employment. The following table that shows the EAP is extracted from the Department's presentations to the sectors in February 2025.

EAP		AFRICAN	COLOURED	INDIAN	WHITE	TOTAL	DESIGNATED
NATIONAL	Male	43.5%	4.6%	1.7%	4.1%	53.9%	49.8%
	Female	37.5%	4.2%	1.0%	3.4%	46.1%	46.1%
	TOTAL	81.0%	8.8%	2.7%	7.5%	100.0%	95.9%

75. The difference between the 46.1% made up by women and the 49.8% made up by men from designated groups, is 4.1%. This corresponds to the EAP for white males.

[14] The 8 sectors already named, plus the following 4 sectors: Administration and Support Activities Sector, Electricity Steam and Gas Sector, Construction, Public Administration and Defence; Compulsory Social Security Sector, and Water Supply, Sewerage, Waste Management and Remediation Activities Sector.

76. Regulations 9(10), 9(11) and 9(12) oblige employers to avoid employing persons from any particular designated group that exceeds the EAP, and to set targets that bring the percentage down to the EAP in cases of over-representation. These regulations read as follows:

> "(10) A designated employer must avoid perpetuating the over-representation of any group if their representation exceeds the applicable EAP in a particular occupational level.
> (11) A designated employer that has exceeded the numerical target set for a particular designated group at an occupational level should continue to set targets that maintain compliance with the EAP.
> (12) Designated employers must set numerical goals and annual EE targets at the semi-skilled and unskilled occupational levels in their EE Plans in terms of section 20(2) of the EEA, taking into account the applicable EAP."

77. In this manner, the targets and the impugned regulations prevent women from representing more than 46.1% in any occupation level, in any sector, in the economy and public administration.

78. Where women exceed 46.1%, targets must be set and strategies employed by employers to reduce such percentage in order to bring it into line with the EAP. According to the 2025 targets and impugned regulations, in all businesses and all parts of the administration, women are not permitted to be, or remain, in the majority.

79. The targets and impugned regulations are unlawful and irrational because they disadvantage women, who are a group that the Act recognises as being previously disadvantaged.

80. They are thus contrary to section 2 of the Act[15], and unlawfully infringe sections 9, 10 and 22 of the Constitution.[16]

81. The need for urgent, interim relief interdicting the implementation of the targets pending the review is necessary to prevent irreparable harm to these constitutional rights from occurring.

The new method of setting targets

82. The reason that the targets disadvantage women is to be found in the new method that the Minister has used in setting the targets.

83. According to that method, the targets have been set by adding fixed percentages to the 2024 workforce profile in each occupational level. Top management is increased by 6%, senior management by 7%, professionally

15 See s 2: "The purpose of this Act is to achieve equity in the workplace by-

(a) promoting equal opportunity and fair treatment in employment through the elimination of unfair discrimination; and

(b) implementing affirmative action measures to redress the disadvantages in employment experienced by designated groups, in order to ensure their equitable representation in all occupational levels in the workforce."

16 Affordable Medicines para 58-59

qualified and middle management by 8%, and skilled or technical employees by 9%.

84. These percentages are adjusted when, as in the case of women in a number of sectors, the 2024 workforce profile on its own, or the 2024 workforce profile coupled with the added fixed percentage, is above the national EAP.

85. In such instances, irrespective of the nature of the sector, the nature of the work in the sector, who is employed or who may be employable in the sector, the target is set at the national EAP.

No publication and no proper consultation on the new method

86. This new method of setting targets, and the proposed new and radically[17] different targets produced by it, were not published in draft form by the Minister for public comment as required in terms of section 15A(4) of the Act.

87. They were only presented and explained to employers during a series of virtual meetings between the Department and employers within the 18 sectors in February 2025.

88. Employees from the sectors were not invited to the meetings. The new method and the proposed targets were not shown to them. They had no opportunity to make representations to the Minister on the appropriateness of the method or the proposed targets. The same applies to other interested persons.

THE HIGH COURT'S APPROACH

89. The approach taken by the High Court was alarming and untenable.

90. In summary, the High Court held:

90.1 that the application was not a constitutional matter[18];

90.2 that interdictory relief was not appropriate in circumstances where the targets and impugned regulations had been published[19]; and

90.3 that the applicant's prospects of success in the review are "extremely weak".[20]

91. For the reasons that follow, the applicants respectfully submit that the judgment of the High Court is clearly wrong. It is in conflict with the Promotion of Administrative Justice Act 3 of 2000 ("PAJA"), the Constitution, and the judgments of this Court and other courts.

18 Judgment para 21 & 23: "In this application, there is no constitutional matter involved."
19 Judgment para 12-19
20 Judgment para 20

CLEAR UNLAWFULNESS

92. The High Court states that the applicants relied on three grounds of unlawfulness.[21] This is incorrect. The applicants pressed five grounds of unlawfulness in argument.

93. Each of these grounds is discussed below.

First ground: Failure to publish draft 2025 targets

94. Section 15A provides:

> "15A. Determination of sectoral numerical targets
> (1) The Minister may, by notice in the Gazette, identify national economic sectors for the purposes of this Act, having regard to any relevant code contained in the Standard Industrial Classification of all Economic Activities published by Statistics South Africa.
> (2) The Minister may, after consulting the relevant sectors and with the advice of the Commission, for the purpose of ensuring the equitable representation of suitably qualified people from designated groups at all occupational levels in the workforce, by notice in the Gazette set numerical targets for any national economic sector identified in terms of subsection (1).

[21] Judgment para 11.

(3) A notice issued in terms of subsection (2) may set different numerical targets for different occupational levels, sub-sectors or regions within a sector or on the basis of any other relevant factor.

(4) A draft of any notice that the Minister proposes to issue in terms of subsection (1) or subsection (2) must be published in the Gazette, allowing interested parties at least 30 days to comment thereon."

95. Section 15A(4) requires the Minister to publish the "draft of any notice that the Minister proposes to issue ... allowing interested parties at least 30 days to comment thereon".

96. As was indicated in the judgment, the Minister published draft targets on two occasions prior to the coming into effect of section 15A.

97. The first draft targets were published on 12 May 2023 ("the draft 2023 targets"). The second draft targets were published on 1 February 2024 ("the draft 2024 targets").

98. The drafts differed in that the 2023 draft proposed separate targets for different racial groups and proposed national and provincial targets, whereas the 2024 draft proposed collective targets for designated groups, and proposed national targets only.

99. But the numerical targets themselves that were proposed in the 2023 and 2024 drafts, when aggregated, largely corresponded.

100. Apart from a marginal difference in the target for top management in the Information and Communication Sector[22] and several differences in the targets set for the Financial and Insurance Activities Sector,[23] there was only one difference between the draft 2023 targets and the draft 2024 targets.

101. This difference was that the collective target for designated groups in every occupational level and in every sector in the 2024 draft, were 3.5% less than in the 2023 draft. This was the result of a 3.5% reduction in the targets for women.

102. The targets set on 15 April 2025 bore no relation to the draft 2023 and 2024 targets.

103. As I have stated, this is because the targets were set according to a new method, and that method produced materially different targets.

104. The targets were also prepared using information that only came into existence in October 2024, eight months after the draft 2024 targets were published.

22 The target for top management for designated groups was reduced from 51.5% to 50%.

23 Top management reduced from 54.8% to 46%, senior management reduced from 60.5% to 48%, professionally qualified and middle management from 73.5% to 64%, and skilled employees from 91.7% to 88.2%.

105. Every target for every employment level in every sector was different. The differences in the combined targets for designated groups ranged from -1% to +29%. The average change across all sectors and occupational levels was an increase of 11.9%.

106. The tables below showing the differences between the draft 2024 targets and the 2025 targets for the Financial and Insurance Activities Sector and the Professional, Scientific and Technical Activities Sector are typical of the differences in all sectors:

107. The High Court held that the publication of the draft 2023 and 2024 targets satisfied the requirement of publication of the draft for public comment in terms of section 15A(4).[24] It reasoned as follows:

> "It is common cause that in 2023 and 2024, the Minister published notices which contained numerical targets proposed for the 18 sectors already identified after what appears to be a rigorous process. Taking into account the fact that the drafts seek to source comments of interested parties, the notice of 15 April 2025 did not require to still undergo a comment process. After 2023 and 2024, it must axiomatically follow that interested parties were allowed an opportunity to comment. Allow, does not mean compel or even consult per se. Allow, means permit to do something. As indicated earlier an employee in the sector qualifies to be an interested party. A comment is a remark expressing an opinion or reaction. Since there is no dispute that in 2023 and 2024 the proposed drafts were published, it must also axiomatically follow that interested parties were permitted to remark or express an opinion or reaction. The 30-days period was, on the uncontested facts, without any doubt permitted by the Minister."[25]

108. The High Court's reasoning is clearly flawed.

109. The fact that the public had been given opportunity to comment on previous drafts of the targets, did not imply that the Minister was excused from publishing a further set of draft targets in compliance with section 15A(4) when the targets she intended to set were new, and differed materially, from the previous drafts.

110. The public had never seen targets prepared according to a method in which fixed percentages of 6%, 7%, 8% or 9% were added to the 2024 workforce profile, and adjustments were made based on the EAP.

111. They had not been given any opportunity to comment on whether the method was appropriate, or the resultant targets were reasonable or achievable.

112. In addition, the respondents failed to provide evidence of any link between the 2023 and 2024 targets or the comments on those drafts, and the 2025 targets, despite having a full month to prepare their answering affidavit.[26]

25 Judgment para 37. The High Court also misconstrued the argument for the applicants, suggesting incorrectly that the applicants had argued that the 2025 targets should have been published in final form for comment. The High Court also incorrectly suggested the applicants argued for publication of 30-days from 15 April 2025 after the publication of the 2025 targets in final form.

26 The application was launched on 8 July 2025. In case management, the Acting DJP allowed the respondents until 8 August 2025 to file the answering affidavit.

113. The reasoning of the High Court had already been rightly rejected by the decision of the SCA in Kouga.[27] There it was held that where bylaws published by a Municipality were "markedly different" from the draft bylaws that were published for comment, "republication of the revised draft was necessary to meet the legislative requirements of the Constitution and the Systems Act".[28]

114. The Minister's failure to comply with section 15A(4) is a very strong ground of review.

Second ground: The Minister failed to consult with the sectors

115. Section 15A(2) provides that the Minister may only set targets for national economic sectors "after consulting the relevant sectors".

116. Section 1 of the Act defines "sector" to mean "an industry or service or part of any industry or service". The Minister identified 18 sectors in terms of section 15A(1) on 15 April 2025.[29] The same 18 sectors had first been identified in the draft notice that accompanied the draft 2023 targets.

27 Kouga Municipality v Bellingan 2012 (2) SA 95 (SCA) para 9

28 Kouga idem. The same approach was followed by the Constitutional Court in South African Iron and Steel Institute v Speaker of the National Assembly 2023 (10) BCLR 1232 (CC), and see also the Full Bench decision in Earthlife Africa (Cape Town) v Director-General: DEAT & Another 2005 (3) SA 156 (C) para 64

29 They are: (1) Accommodation and Food Service Activities, (2) Administrative and Support Activities, (3) Agriculture, Forestry and Fishing, (4) Arts, Entertainment and Recreation, (5) Construction, (6) Education, (7) Electricity, Gas, Steam and Air-Conditioning Supply, (8) Financial and Insurance Activities, (9) Human Health and Social Work Activities, (10) Information and Communication, (11) Manufacturing, (12) Mining and Quarrying, (13) Professional, Scientific and Technical Activities, (14) Public Administration and Defence; Compulsory Social Security, (15) Real Estate Activities, (16) Transportation and Storage, (17) Water Supply, Sewerage, Waste Management and Remediation Activities, and (18) Wholesale and Retail Trade; Repair of Motor Vehicles and Motor Cycles

117. The facts before the High Court were as follows:

117.1 The Department had held "sector engagements" with isolated industry bodies between June 2019 and November 2022. The Employment Equity Amendment Act 4 of 2022 ("the Amendment Act") (that introduced section 15A) was passed on 17 May 2022. Accordingly, almost all of these "sector engagements" were held before the Amendment Act became law.

117.2 There were no targets, in draft form or otherwise, on the table between June 2019 and November 2022. The "sector engagements", in any event, were only held with isolated industry stakeholders who could not represent the whole sector.[30]

117.3 The only real attempt by the Department to consult with the sectors on the proposed 2025 targets took place in the form of virtual meetings held on MS Teams between 11 February 2025 and 19 February 2025.

117.4 As to these meetings, the following facts contained in the founding affidavit, were not pertinently confronted and contradicted by the respondents[31]:

30 For instance, in the case of the Transport and Storage Sector, the Department met only with one stakeholder from the sector: the Road Freight Association.

31 Wightman t/a JW Construction v Headfour (Pty) Ltd 2008 (3) SA 371 (SCA) para 13

117.4.1 The Department gave notice of the meetings by emailing invitations addressed to "CEOs & Senior EE Managers" of employers registered with the Department.

117.4.2 Not all registered employers received the invitations. Affidavits of members who did not receive the invitations were attached to the founding affidavit. Employers in the sectors who were not yet registered, were not invited.

117.4.3 The Department provided some employers with the proposed 2025 targets one or two days before the meeting. The remainder saw the proposed 2025 targets for the first time during the meeting.

117.4.4 Employers had insufficient time to consider the proposed targets or meaningfully make representations on the targets during the meetings.

117.4.5 The meetings were rushed and lasted for a limited duration between 1 to 1.5 hours at a time, save the meeting for the Retail Sector. Attendance was limited by the virtual platform to 1000 participants. In the case of the Manufacturing Sector, employers could not access the platform because the limit had been reached.

117.4.6 The meetings were conducted like information sessions, and not consultations. The majority of the time was taken up by the Department's presentation and questions of an administrative nature. The Department avoided answering comments in the "chats" that commented on the substance of the proposed 2025 targets.

117.4.7 Less than 20 employers out of the hundreds of employers who attended, had opportunity to speak in the meetings, before the meetings were ended. Employers who wished to speak in the meetings were prevented from doing so by the time limit.

117.4.8 Between 4 and 8 working days were afforded to those attending the meetings to make submissions in writing, depending on the sector.

117.4.9 The Minister and the Department made no attempt at any stage to consult with employees from the sectors.

117.5 The answering affidavit supplemented the above facts with the following:

117.5.1 The Commission finalised the 2025 targets on 3 March 2025. This was less than a week from the last day for written submissions by employers. None of the targets proposed to employers in the virtual meetings were changed.

117.5.2 There was no allegation in the answering affidavit to the effect that the Minister, or the Department, of the > Commission, considered and took into account the comments or representations made by employers either during the virtual meetings, or in writing afterwards.

118. In its judgment, the High Court first considered which persons or entities were included in the "sectors".

119. Contrary to the applicants' submission that "sectors" include at least[32] employers and employees in a sector, the High Court held that:

> "An industry or service cannot be confined to an employer or an employee only. The are various stakeholders in an industry and service. Broadly, a sector must include those various stakeholders."[33]

120. The High Court did not make clear who these "various other stakeholders" were. It did indicate, however, that "a sector does not necessarily … include employees".[34] This apparently contradicted what it had stated earlier.

121. The High Court also did not analyse whether there had been proper consultation with the "various other stakeholders". It held that the mere fact that there had been "a consultation process" prior to the setting of targets, was sufficient:

32 The High Court incorrectly states that the applicants submitted that "sectors" include only employers and employees. See Judgment para 30-31

33 Judgment para 31

34 Judgment para 33

> "There was evidence of a consultation process since 2019. All of that preceded the setting of the numerical targets. The section does not prescribe as to when and how the envisaged consultation must happen. Of significance is the exercise of statutory power (setting of numerical numbers) ought to happen after the consultation process. It matters not as to when and how the consultation happens. as long as the exercise of power happens after the consultation process. Then and in that event, the section would have been complied with."[35]

122. Regarding employees, the High Court held it was not necessary for the Minister to consult with employees, over and above the publication of draft targets for comment by interested parties in terms of section 15A(4).[36]

123. The High Court's approach is contrary to the requirements of PAJA[37], and in conflict with the principles recently affirmed by this Court in Corruption Watch.[38]

124. It's finding that "the consultation contemplated in [section 15A(2)] has happened"[39] is insupportable. The process followed by the Department clearly prevented consultation in the substantive sense from occurring.[40]

37 See sections 3(1) & (2) and 4 of PAJA

40 Scalabrini Centre of Cape Town and Another v Minister of Home Affairs and Others 2013 (3) SA 531 (WCC) para 72 (per Rogers J, as he then was)

125. There was no meaningful consultation on the proposed 2025 targets with the two categories of persons within the sectors who would be most directly and materially affected by the targets: employers and employees from the sectors.

126. The High Court's finding that the duty to consult with employees was satisfied by publication of the draft 2023 and 2024 notices in the Government Gazette was wrong for three reasons:

126.1 First, the 2025 targets were only shown in draft form to employers in the February virtual meetings. They were not published in the Government Gazette.

126.2 Second, the High Court erroneously relied on Electronic Media Network.[41] The main judgment considered the rationality of the process followed by the Minister on the assumption that the exercise of public power concerned was executive in nature.[42] It is not authority for the proposition that in every case in which a notice and comment procedure is followed, the consultation is genuine and meaningful and passes constitutional muster.[43]

126.3 Third, according to this Court's decision in Wary[44], the interpretation of section 15A(2) which places a higher duty on the Minister to consult with employers and employees in the sectors, in addition to publication for comment by interested persons who may not be part of the sectors[45] in terms of section 15A(4), must be preferred.

127. The Minister's failure to comply with section 15A(2) is another very strong ground of review.

Third Ground: Arbitrariness and failure to consider relevant factors

128. The facts before the High Court regarding the method used to set the 2025 targets were not disputed.

129. It was also not disputed that the method was new. It had not been employed by the Department or the Minister to prepare the draft 2023 or 2024 targets.

130. The method used by the Minister in setting the targets is best explained using an example. Below is the page of the presentation by the Department to attendees at the virtual meeting for the Administrative and Support Activities sector that contains the proposed 2025 targets.

[45] Such as prospective employees, or persons and entities in other related sectors, who may have an interest in the targets set in a sector.

	Total	63.9%	78.8%	87.3%	95.1%
WORKFORCE PROFILE (ALL DESIGNATED EMPLOYERS) - 2023	Male	28.3%	37.2%	42.1%	55.7%	0.7%
	Female	33.1%	41.3%	45.3%	39.5%
	Total	61.4%	78.5%	87.4%	95.2%

Fixed percentage

131. The 2025 targets were set by adding a fixed, pre-determined percentage to the percentage of designated employees in the 2024 workforce profile, and only adjusting that percentage when the EAP was exceeded.

132. The pre-determined percentage increases were as follows: 6% for top management, 7% for senior employees; 8% for professionally qualified and middle management; and 9% for skilled or technical employees.

133. Thus, in the Administrative and Support Activities sector:

133.1 for top management, the 2024 workforce profile percentage was increased from 63.9% to 69.9% (+6%).

133.2 for senior management, the 2024 workforce profile percentage of 78.8% was increased to 85.8% (+7%); and 133.3 for professionally qualified and middle management, the 2024 workforce profile percentage of 87.3% was increased to 95.3% (+8%).

Adjustment according to the EAP

134. The fixed percentages were trimmed down in cases where the addition of the fixed percentage would cause the target to exceed the EAP.

135. In the third quarter of 2024:

135.1 the total national EAP for males in designated groups was 49.8%;

135.2 the total national EAP for females in designated groups was 46.1%; and 135.3 the cumulative total national EAP for designated groups was 95.9%.

136. In the Administrative and Support Activities sector, the 2024 workforce profile for designated groups in the skilled technical occupational level was 95.1%. Accordingly, 9% could not be added. The target was set at 95.9% (+0.8%).

Adjustments to the targets for genders

137. EAP was also used to guide the adjustment and setting of the targets for the genders.

138. Firstly, where the percentage for designated groups for either males or females exceeded the EAP, the percentage for that gender was reduced and the target for that gender was set at the EAP.

139. Thus, in the Administrative and Support Activities sector, the 2024 workforce profile for males for skilled technical was 56.7%. This exceeded the male EAP for designated groups (49.8%). Therefore, the 2025 target for skilled technical for males in this sector is set at 49.8%.

140. Secondly, where the 2024 workforce profile for one gender substantially exceeded the other gender, the greater portion of the fixed percentage increase was given to the other gender.

141. Thus, in the three highest levels of occupation in Administrative and Support Activities sector the fixed percentage increase was allocated as follows:

141.1 in top management, 2% to females and 4% to males;

141.2 in senior management, 2% to females and 5% to males; and

141.3 in professionally qualified and middle management, 0.5% to females and 7.5% to males.

The targets for persons with disability set at 3%

142. While the targets for the occupational levels were increased, as a rule, by pre-determined percentages, the target for persons with disability was increased to a pre-determined percentage.

143. The 2025 target for persons with disability in every sector was set at 3%.

No target below the 2024 workforce profile

144. The final part of the method was the rule that the total target set for designated groups could not be below the 2024 workforce profile.

145. In limited instances in several sectors, the downward adjustment to EAP for one of the genders was so dramatic, that even with the addition of the fixed percentage to the other gender, the target would have been below the 2024 workforce profile.

146. In those instances, the other gender would be increased in excess of the fixed percentage to ensure the target set was above the 2024 workforce profile.

Arbitrariness and failure to take into account relevant considerations

147. The targets are arbitrary, and fail to take into account relevant considerations,[46] because pre-determined percentage points are added and adjustments with reference to the national EAP are made, irrespective of, and without taking into account:

147.1 the nature of the sector;

147.2 the number of suitably qualified persons from designated groups that are available for employment in the sector;

147.3 the economic status of the sector;

147.4 the rate of growth in the sector, and whether there is sufficient growth to support new employment or promotion in the sector; and 147.5 the rate of natural attrition in the sector.

148. The above information is critical to whether the targets are reasonable, feasible, appropriate or achievable for designated employers in a sector.

[46] See s 6(2)(e)(iii) and 6(2)(e)(vi) of PAJA

149. The Minister could not lawfully or reasonably set targets for the sectors without taking these factors into account.[47]

150. The High Court held that the targets were not arbitrary because the Minister had set them with reference to the EAP, on the advice of the Commission and after consultation.[48] It held:

> "Owing to the rigorous process that precedes the setting of numerical targets, this Court rejects the argument of arbitrariness. The numerical targets were not and could not have been whimsically set by the Minister. Something is done arbitrarily, if it is based on random choice or person whim rather than on any reason or system. The relevant code published by Statistics South Africa, informs the setting of numerical targets. The advice of the CEE is factored in when numerical targets are set. Consultation with the relevant sectors also informed the setting of numerical targets."[49]

151. The applicants submit that the High Court's judgment is clearly wrong. It is tantamount to saying that where a decision-maker consults and receives advice, or uses some published statistics the decision cannot ever be arbitrary.

152. The failure of the Minister to consider relevant considerations, and consequent setting of targets that are arbitrary, is another very strong ground of review.

48 Judgment para 41. See also Judgment para 36

49 Judgment para 41. See also Judgment para 36

Fourth Ground: Discrimination against women

153. The facts before the High Court have been set out above.

154. The High Court held that the targets do not discriminate against women because women would not be affected by the targets, but by the numerical goals set by employers in their employment equity plans. It held:

> "This argument of arbitrariness that disadvantages women clearly ignores the fact that what the Minister is statutorily empowered to do is to set numerical targets as opposed to goals. It will be the setting of numerical goals, which is the statutory function of an employer, that may lead to a disadvantage of women."[50]

155. The High Court's reasoning is clearly wrong because it is section 20(2A), and in turn Regulations 9(7)(a) and 9(13), that oblige employers to comply with the Minister's targets when setting numerical goals in their employment equity plans.

156. The High Court then held that the targets did not discriminate against women because, in setting the targets, the Minister had acted on the advice of the Commission.[51] This reasoning is also clearly wrong, because the fact that the Minister may have acted on advice, does not alter the fact that the targets objectively discriminate against women.

50 Judgment para 44
51 Judgment para 44

157. Finally, the High Court held that the targets do not discriminate against women because employers can justifiably refuse to comply with the targets on the basis that they unfairly discriminate women:

> "Where an employer, in setting numerical goals chooses not to comply with the numerical targets set by the Minister in terms of section 15A because such will discriminate against women, such a ground is reasonable to justify failure to comply".[52]

158. This reasoning inverts the constitutional scheme. It is the state's duty to make laws and regulations that are constitutional, and the private citizen's duty to comply with the laws and regulations made by the state. The state has no power to make regulations and laws that are unconstitutional.[53] The state can also not absolve itself from the duty to make constitutional laws and regulations by conferring a right on the private citizen to disobey laws if the private citizen believes they are unconstitutional.

159. The targets and impugned regulations are clearly unconstitutional because they unfairly discriminate against women. This is also a very strong ground of review.

52 Judgment para 46
53 s 1(c) of the Constitution

Fifth Ground: The Minister's decision was irrational as to process

160. The scheme introduced by the Minister is designed to make every occupational level of every sector a mirror of the EAP. A number of the 2025 targets are already set at the EAP. The remainder are "milestones towards" the EAP.[54] This is a radical and dramatic form of social engineering. It is unprecedented in human history.

161. In order to rationally and lawfully introduce such a scheme, it was necessary for the Minister to first obtain and consider a comprehensive socio-economic impact assessment of the social, economic, financial, cultural and human consequences of introducing such a scheme. [55]

162. In the founding affidavit, the applicants showed that they had repeatedly requested the socio-economic impact assessment report conducted in respect of the 2023 and 2024 draft targets, but these had not been provided. The applicants averred that the 2025 targets and impugned regulations had similarly been published without a comprehensive socio-economic impact assessment having been obtained and considered.

163. The respondents did not dispute that they had failed to provide socio-economic impact assessments that had been requested. But they claimed that the Minister had considered a socio-economic impact assessment conducted in 2019 ("the 2019 SEIA"). The respondents failed, however, to attach the 2019 SEIA to the affidavit.

54 Regulation 9(8)

55 Democratic Alliance v President of the Republic of South Africa and Others 2013 (1) SA 248 (CC) para 36 and 39

164. The fact that the respondents were constrained to rely on the 2019 SEIA showed that the Minister had indeed failed to obtain and consider a socio-economic report on the consequences of setting targets in the manner that she had.

165. The 2019 SEIA had been conducted as part of the parliamentary drafting process of the Employment Equity Bill. This was three years prior to the passing of the Amendment Bill in May 2022, and six years before the adoption of the targets in April 2025.

166. The 2019 SEIA could only have been an assessment of the proposed amendments to the Act. These are not the same as the 2025 targets or the impugned regulations. No socio-economic impact assessment, comprehensive or otherwise, was conducted in relation to the latter. The Minister did not obtain or consider a socio-economic impact assessment on the consequences of introducing the targets and the impugned regulations.

167. Accordingly, the Minister's setting of the 2025 targets, in conjunction with the accompanying regulations, was irrational as to process.[56]

56 Democratic Alliance v President of the Republic of South Africa and Others 2013 (1) SA 248 (CC), par 34, and 36–39

168. The High Court failed to deal with this ground of unlawfulness in its judgment, despite that it was pressed in oral argument. The High Court dealt with the matter as if the ground of unlawfulness did not exist. The applicants submit that the High Court erred in doing so.

169. The applicants submit that this is also a very strong ground of review.

THE HIGH COURT'S ERRONEOUS FINDINGS ABOUT REMEDY

170. The High Court held that since the targets and impugned regulations had already been published, interdictory relief was not available.[57] It held that:

> "[T]he administrative action of 15 April 2025 remains valid until set aside by a Court of competent jurisdiction. Complying with the decision of 15 April 2025 does not amount to an unlawful conduct, which is preventable by way of an interdict."[58]

171. The High Court held further that interdictory relief was not appropriate because any harm that may be caused by the targets was "self-inflicted", and could be avoided by employers the invocation of a reasonable ground as a justification for not complying with the targets.[59]

172. The High Court also held that it had no power to suspend the operation and implementation of the targets and impugned regulations under section

57 Judgment para 15
58 Judgment para 15. See also para 17
59 Judgment para 18

172(1)(b) of the Constitution for two reasons. First, because the application was not a constitutional matter.[60] And second, because the Minister had not acted "unjustly or inequitably...or in breach of the EEA."[61]

173. In regard to the latter, the applicants can, of course, have no quibble with the proposition that a court will not grant interim relief when the court is of the view that the grounds of unlawfulness raised have no prospects of success in the review. But for the reasons set out above, that is not the case in this instance.

174. The remainder of the High Court's findings are clearly wrong:

174.1 The finding that the application is not a constitutional matter is contrary to section 167 of the Constitution and the decisions of this Court.[62]

174.2 The finding that the court cannot interdict and restrain the operation and implementation of the targets and the impugned regulations pending the review is contrary to section 8(1)(e) of PAJA, and section 38 of the Constitution read with this Court's decision in Fose.[63]

174.3 The finding that the court's power to grant "any order that is just and equitable" in constitutional matters in terms of section 172(1)(b) of the Constitution does not extend to orders restraining the operation of administrative action pending a review is not consistent with this Court's decisions in Ermelo[64] and Economic Freedom Fighters.[65]

174.4 The finding that the harm is "self-inflicted" is clearly wrong. Section 20(2A) of the Act and Regulation 9(7)(a), 9(9) and 9(13) bind employers to adopt the 5-year targets set by the Minister, and to set annual targets towards reaching the 5-year targets.

174.5 The finding that irreparable harm may be avoided by using the reasonable ground defence is misconceived. The reasonable ground defence is only available to employers who are unable to comply with the targets.[66] The irreparable harm referred to in this application will result from the implementation of the targets by employers who are able to comply with the targets, and implement them because they are bound by section 20(2A) of the Act and Regulations 9(7)(a) and 9(13).

IRREPARABLE HARM AND THE BALANCE OF CONVENIENCE

175. The irreparable harm that will be suffered by women if the targets and impugned regulations are implemented has been identified above.

64 Head of Department, Mpumalanga Department of Education v Hoërskool Ermelo 2010 (2) SA 415 (CC) para 97

65 Economic Freedom Fighters v Gordhan and Others 2020 (6) SA 325 (CC) para 108-114

66 Regulation 16(5): "Justifiable reasonable grounds for not complying with the targets are - (a) insufficient recruitment opportunities; (b) insufficient promotion opportunities; (c) insufficient target individuals from designated groups with relevant formal qualifications, prior learning, relevant experience or capacity to acquire, within a reasonable time, the ability to do the job, as contemplated by sections 20(3) to (5) of the Act; (d) the impact of a CCMA award or court order; (e) a transfer of a business; (f) mergers or acquisitions; and (g) the impact of economic conditions on the business."

176. Similar irreparable harm will be suffered by all persons who are not employed, or not promoted, as a result of the implementation of the targets and impugned regulations.

177. For it is undeniable that if the targets and impugned regulations are implemented:

177.1 Individual employees and prospective employees will be employed or not employed, and promoted or not promoted, based on unlawful targets.

177.2 Employers will employ new employees and make other permanent changes to their workforce, and take on the expense that this involves, all based on unlawful targets.

177.3 The harm and loss that will be suffered by employers, businesses, employees and prospective employees across the country will, by its nature, be irreparable. This harm and loss cannot be remedied in due course.

177.4 Because the targets and impugned regulations apply to every designated employer in every sector of the economy, the scale of that irreparable harm and loss will be vast.

178. In addition, there were eight affidavits by members of the applicants who identified the specific manner in which their businesses would suffer irreparable harm if the targets were implemented. No attempt was made by the respondents to pertinently dispute the content of these affidavits.

179. Irreparable harm will also be caused to the right to administrative justice and to review administrative action that is unlawful and invalid. The implementation of the targets for months or years pending the review and subsequent appeals will prejudice the review and prevent the Court from granting effective relief.

180. By contrast, the harm to the Minister and the Department, if interim relief is granted, would not cause harm to the separation of powers.

181. The Minister and the Department would still be able to perform their statutory functions in accordance with the pre-amendment affirmative action provisions in the Act. Those provisions require employers to prepare and implement employment equity plans. All of the robust enforcement provisions contained in the Act, and the powers that may be exercised by the Minister and the Department in terms of those provisions, would remain.

182. The Minister and the Department would also be able to perform their statutory functions in terms of post-amendment affirmative action provisions in the Act. Nothing prevents them from withdrawing the 2025 targets and impugned regulations, and setting new targets that are consistent with the Constitution in a constitutionally compliant manner if they choose to do so before the review is finalised.

CONCLUSION

183. In all the circumstances, I respectfully submit that:

183.1 the prospective appeal concerns constitutional issues that fall within the jurisdiction of this Court;

183.2 the prospective appeal bears excellent prospects of success;

183.3 the application for interim relief is an exceptional one in which a strong case for interim relief has been made out[67]

183.4 it remains urgent that the interim relief sought be granted;

183.5 the application for interim relief was launched and dealt with by the High Court as a matter of urgency because implementation of the targets was set to commence on 1 September 2025.

183.6 because the High Court dismissed the application, implementation of the targets has commenced;

67 Economic Freedom Fighters para 48

183.7 from 1 September 2025, and unless interim relief is granted, employers will be taking active steps to achieve the five-year targets set by the Minister;

183.8 irreparable harm to the rights of women, employers and persons from designated groups who the targets may not adequately promote, will occur on an ongoing basis;

183.9 the retrogressive targets that disadvantage women must be decisively interdicted and restrained from operation; and 183.10 in view of the various features of this case, it is in the interests of justice for leave to appeal to be granted directly to this Court.

184. I therefore pray for the relief set out in the Notice of Motion.

I hereby certify that the deponent has acknowledged that he:

NO. 6124 15 April 2025

EMPLOYMENT EQUITY ACT, 1998 (ACT 55 OF 1998 AS AMENDED)

DETERMINATION OF SECTORAL NUMERICAL TARGETS

I, Nomakhosazana Meth, Minister of Employment and Labour in terms of 15A (1) and (2) of the Employment Equity Act, 1998 (Act No. 55 of 1998 as amended), after consulting the relevant sectors and with the advice of the Commission for Employment Equity, hereby publish this notice identifying national economic sectors and determining the sectoral numerical targets effective from the date of publication.

MS NOMAKHOSAZANA METH, MP

MINISTER: DEPARTMENT OF EMPLOYMENT AND LABOUR

DATE: 10 April 2025

1. Identification of Economic Sectors

In terms of section 15A (1) of the Employment Equity Act, 1998 (Act No. 5 of 1998, as amended) ("the Act"), and having regard to the codes contained in the Standard Industrial Classification of all Economic Activities published by Statistic South Africa, the national economic sectors listed below are identified for the purposes of the Act:

1.1. Accommodation and Food Service Activities

1.2. Administrative and Support Activities

1.3. Agriculture, Forestry & Fishing

1.4. Arts, Entertainment and Recreation

1.5. Construction

1.6. Education

1.7. Electricity, Gas, Steam and Air Conditioning Supply

1.8. Financial and Insurance Activities

1.9. Human Health and Social Work Activities

1.10. Information and Communication

1.11. Manufacturing

1.12. Mining and Quarrying

1.13. Professional, Scientific and Technical Activities

1.14. Public Administration and Defence; Compulsory Social Security

1.15. Real Estate Activities

1.16. Transportation and Storage

1.17. Water Supply, Sewerage, Waste Management and Remediation Activities

1.18. Wholesale and Retail Trade; Repair of Motor Vehicles and Motorcycles

2. Sectoral numerical targets

2.1. In terms of section 15A(2) of the Act, for the purpose of ensuring the equitable representation of suitably qualified people from designated groups at all occupational levels in the workforce, the numerical targets for the economic sectors identified in terms of section 15A(1) are set out in the Table below.

2.2. The targets set out in this notice are operative from the date of publication.

3. Implementation of Affirmative Action measures

For purposes of clarity, it is stated that –

3.1. The 5-year sectoral numerical targets set out in this Notice are not intended to add up to 100%; as the sectoral numerical target excludes white males with no disabilities and foreign nationals as part of the workforce profile.

3.2. The manner in which designated employers must take the targets into account in applying affirmative action measures is specified in the Act, the General Administrative EE Regulations and Codes of Good Practice issued under the Act.

3.3. A designated employer will not incur penalties or any form of disadvantage if in the assessment of compliance of affirmative action in any workplace it shows that there are reasonable grounds for not complying with the EE targets.

1. 5-Year Sectoral Numerical Targets for All Sectors

The table below contains the 5-year sectoral numerical targets for the various population groups and gender for Top Management, Senior Management, Professionally Qualified and Skilled levels; and for employees with disabilities.

EQUAL PAY FOR WORK OF EQUAL VALUE

2. Equal Pay for Work of Equal Value Criteria

These Regulations are published to prescribe the criteria and methodology for assessing work of equal value contemplated in section 6(4) of the Act.

3. Eliminating unfair discrimination

(1) An employer must, in order to eliminate unfair discrimination, take steps to eliminate differences in terms and conditions of employment, including remuneration of employees who perform work of equal value if those differences are directly or indirectly based on a listed ground or any arbitrary ground that is prohibited by section 6(1) of the Act.

(2) Without limiting sub-regulation (1), an employer must ensure that employees are not paid different remuneration for work of equal value based on race, gender or disability.

4. Meaning of work of equal value

For the purposes of these Regulations, the work performed by an employee –

(1) is the same as the work of another employee of the same employer, if their work is identical or interchangeable;

(2) is substantially the same as the work of another employee employed by that employer, if the work performed by the employees is sufficiently similar that they can reasonably be considered to be performing the same job, even if their work is not identical or interchangeable;

(3) is of the same value as the work of another employee of the same employer in a different job, if their respective occupations are accorded the same value in accordance with regulations 5 to 7.

5. Methodology

When, applying section 6(4) of the Act –

(1) it must first be established:

(a) whether the work concerned is of equal value in accordance with regulation 6; and

(b) whether there is a difference in terms and conditions of employment, including remuneration.

(2) it must then be established whether any difference in terms of sub-regulation (1)(b) constitutes unfair discrimination, applying the provisions of section 11 of the Act.

6. Assessing whether work is of equal value

(1) In considering whether work is of equal value, the relevant jobs must be objectively assessed, taking into account the following criteria:

(a) the responsibility demanded of the work, including responsibility for people, finances and material;

(b) the skills and qualifications, including prior learning and experience, required to perform the work, whether formal or informal;

(c) the physical, mental and emotional effort required to perform the work; and

(d) to the extent that it is relevant, the conditions under which work is performed, including the physical environment, psychological conditions, time when and geographic location where the work is performed.

(2) In addition to the criteria specified in sub-regulation (1), any other factor indicating the value of the work may be taken into account in evaluating work, provided the employer shows that the factor is relevant to assessing the value of the work.

(3) The assessment undertaken in terms of sub-regulations (1) and (2) must be conducted in a manner that is free from bias on grounds of race, gender, disability or on any other ground contemplated in section 6(1) of the Act.

(4) Despite sub-regulations (1) and (2), an employer may justify the value assigned to an employee's work by reference to the classification of a relevant job in terms of a sectoral determination made by the Minister of Employment and Labour in terms of section 55 of the Basic Conditions of Employment Act, 1997 (Act No. 75 of 1997) which applies to the employer.

7. Factors justifying differentiation in terms and conditions of employment

(1) If employees perform work that is of equal value, a difference in terms and conditions of employment, including remuneration, is not unfair discrimination if the difference is fair and rational and is based on any one or a combination of the following grounds:

(a) the individuals' respective seniority or length of service;

(b) the individuals' respective qualifications, ability, competence or potential above the minimum acceptable levels required for the performance of the job;

(c) the individuals' respective performance, quantity or quality of work, provided that employees are equally subject to the employer's performance evaluation system, that the performance evaluation system is consistently applied;

(d) where an employee is demoted as a result of organisational restructuring or for any other legitimate reason without a reduction in pay and fixing the employee's salary at this level until the remuneration of employees in the same job category reaches this level;

(e) where an individual is employed temporarily in a position for purposes of gaining experience or training and as a result receives different remuneration or enjoys different terms and conditions of employment;

(f) the existence of a shortage of relevant skill, or the market value in a particular job classification; and

(g) any other relevant factor that is not unfairly discriminatory in terms of section 6(1) of the Act.

(2) A differentiation in terms and conditions of employment based on one or more grounds listed in sub-regulation (1) will be fair and rational if it is established, in accordance with section 11 of the Act, that –

(a) its application is not biased against an employee or group of employees based on race, gender or disability or any other ground listed in section 6(1) of the Act; and

(b) it is applied in a proportionate manner.
